

DRISCOLL URGES WHIPPING POST FOR ROAD HOGS

Safety First Association Official Approves of Traffic Court.

Rigid punishment of traffic violators and severe criticism of "jay walkers" was urged last night by J. Driscoll, treasurer of the Washington Safety First Association, in a statement lauding the proposed establishment of a District traffic court.

After cautioning the persons who recklessly cross streets, paying no heed to traffic, Driscoll suggests that the establishment of a whipping post for speeders, "road hogs" and other traffic violators might be a means toward the reduction of the evil. Driscoll's statement reads in part:

"I wish to give my most hearty approval of the action on the part of certain United States Senators in regard to violators of the traffic regulations, and to the speed demons of the District of Columbia as noted in your paper of July 12.

Outsiders Worst Offenders.
The greatest crime on the calendar today is that of murder, and the person that deliberately violates the speed and traffic regulations is one that at least attempts that form of crime. Regulations are made in order that we may all enjoy equal rights in the pursuit of life, liberty and happiness, and the person that will deliberately ignore such regulations is a very poor type of citizen. Unfortunately we have some in the District, but all are not bona fide residents. Personally, the most flagrant offender I have noticed is the person driving a car that does not bear a District license.

"I have given the question of street traffic regulations some little study and I know of no city that has better laws governing traffic than Washington. Capt. Healy, head of the traffic bureau, has a country-wide reputation as a traffic expert, and his department is decidedly active in enforcing the law, but most woefully handicapped in not having the proper court in which to prosecute their cases. This is in all respects a traffic police court where judges are already overworked.

Urges Prompt Trials.
"What is needed is a traffic court wherein an officer making an arrest could have his case tried promptly and where he would not be compelled to spend the greater part of the day waiting to have his case called for trial. For every arrest we must insist on personal appearance in court. I am absolutely opposed to forfeiture of fines or collateral. I would insist that they tell it to the judge. Let each case be decided by a judge."

INTRODUCE BILLS REQUIRING STRICT MILK INSPECTION

District Committee Chairmen Would Bar Unsafe Product.

Simultaneously in the Senate and House yesterday the chairmen of the District Committees, Senator L. Heister Ball, of Delaware, and Representative Pocht, of Pennsylvania, introduced a bill for the regulation of the sale and hygiene of milk and milk products.

A strict inspection is provided to insure healthy conditions under which milk is produced and distributed. No dairies are permitted within the District of Columbia.

Will Test Cattle.
Milk, cream or other specified products will not be allowed to come into the District from farms or dairy plants where there have not been tubercular tests of the cows and other inspections.

It will be necessary for all milk dealers to procure permits from the District Commissioners, which will be issued only upon certification of the health authorities of the District and Federal governments. The permits will be renewable annually on January 1.

Amend Other Laws.

Inspection will be held at storage places whenever the health authorities think it timely and the dealers will be required to exhibit certificates showing the animals from which the milk is taken are in proper physical condition.

The bill is one of several recommended by the District Commissioners. The District Committee reported a bill amending the District laws so as to enforce stricter rules with reference to the materials and contracts on District buildings. The committee also favored the confirmation of John Joy Edson and George M. Kober, recently appointed by President Harding to the District Board of Charities. Baby's Chance for Life Less Than Man of 90

While between 37,000 and 38,000 soldiers were dying in the great war, Dr. Baker told the committee, 300,000 babies died in the United States. Dr. Philip Van Ingen, of New York City, declared that there is more maternal mortality in the United States than from any other cause, except tuberculosis.

"There is more chance for a man of 90 to live than there is for a baby," Dr. Van Ingen declared.
